Beyond the sea

Maybe it was written in the sand. Long before they met, Lauren Scherr and David Stempel grew up spending time on the same Malibu beach overlooked by Lauren's home — David learning to surf, and Lauren spending time with friends. When their first date lasted for more than five hours, the couple knew they were onto something; and when David proposed less than one year later, they knew exactly where the wedding would transpire. "My parents had been remodeling their Malibu house when we got engaged," Lauren says, "and there was no other place where we'd want to be married."
